European student accommodation transactions up 29% in 2017

The European student accommodation investment landscape continues to evolve, providing investors with new opportunities to deploy capital into the countries in this region, which comprise fundamentally undersupplied student accommodation markets.

According to recent data from Real Capital Analytics, €13.6bn of purpose-built student accommodation (PBSA) transacted across Europe in 2017 – up 29% on the previous year. Although capital flows continue to be most prevalent in the UK, transactions across selected mainland European markets also increased, with Spain seeing over €600m of transactions, up from €100m in 2016.

Alongside GSA Coral's investment in a Spanish portfolio in 2017, the Spanish RESA portfolio was acquired by AXA, CBRE Global Investment Partners and Greystar for €400m.

With limited developed stock in the market, it is expected that 2018 will not see the same level of portfolio deals transacted. However, increased development is expected, with institutional capital backing local development partners. GSA Coral is currently invested in Ireland, the UK, Spain and Germany, with over 3,000 additional beds on-program to be ready for occupation in September 2018.

European universities dominate QS World Rankings

Providing globally visible, high-quality education is paramount for universities to compete in an increasingly internationalised and competitive market. Published in May 2018, the latest QS World Rankings highlight how European cities are leading the way in terms of university quality, with the UK, Germany and France dominating the rankings.

On a global scale, higher education is a significant contributor to economic output in developed countries. In the UK, the sector contributes £95bn to the economy, with international students contributing some £25bn of this total despite the UK having the highest tuition costs in Europe (Universities UK / Oxford Economics 2017).

Second only to the USA, international students aspire to study in the UK as their global destination of choice, attracted by the combination of its outstanding reputation for world-class teaching and cutting-edge research, mixed with the enduring quality of the student experience available in UK cities. This is further reflected in the QS World Rankings, whereby ten UK universities are ranked in the top 100, which is again, only surpassed by the USA. The UK therefore remains an attractive market for inward investment with these factors helping to drive student demand and maximise revenue and capital returns.

Portfolio update

At Knoll Court (Newcastle, UK) and Urbanam (Frankfurt, Germany), capital improvement schemes have been completed. Facilities such as gyms, a cinema room and common rooms have been created in under-used areas of the buildings to enhance the student experience, marketability and investment performance.
